

Contents

Preface	7
1 Introduction	11
1.1. Introducing the Portuguese Community	11
1.2. From Entrepôt to Oil Refining	13
1.3. Purpose, Methodology, and Design	17
2 People on the Move: Migrants in a Modern World	23
2.1. Global Migrations in the 19th and 20th Centuries	23
2.2. On Labor Migration	29
3 Export of People	35
3.1. Economic and Political History of Portugal	35
3.2. Times of Dictatorship and Stagnation.	38
3.3. Madeira and Azores: Isolated and Overpopulated	43
4 Laborers for Shell	51
4.1. Construction of the Refinery: 1915-1936	51
4.2. The Initial Workforce	54
4.3. Portuguese Immigrants for Shell: 1929-1954	59
4.4. Workers with a Contract	65
4.5. Staying in Curaçao	71
5 The Oil Worker in a New Environment	77
5.1. Living in Suffisant	77
5.2. Social Life, Sports, and Culture	83
5.3. Starting Entrepreneurs	89
5.4. Overview and Conclusions	92
6 A Changing Society	97
6.1. End of Oil Supremacy	97
6.2. New Opportunities	102
6.3. Renewed Immigration	106
6.4. Autonomy and the Immigrant	114

7 Economic Maturity	121
7.1. A Portuguese Peasantry	121
7.2. Geographical Distribution of Farms	127
7.3. From Neighborhood Shops to Mega Stores	131
7.4. Economic Diversification	138
8 From Separated to Integrated	143
8.1. Changing Demography of an Immigrant Group	143
8.2. Cultural Identity and Social Cohesion	153
8.3. Change and Integration	161
9 Conclusion	171
Acknowledgements	175
List of Respondents	178
Bibliography and Archival Records	180
Appendices	187
Tables	187
Labor Agreement CPIM	189
Map of Curaçao	191